Meet The Winners!

It took three fast games of volleyball for the sophomores to emerge victorious Monday night in a 14-team playoff for Volleyball Championship at the Appomattox High P-TA meeting. It was a great night for the players who won by a slim one-pointer over Coach Stanley Thomas' Juniors. Players and referees, including PTA president Dennis Torrence (2nd row, far right), lined up for a victory photo. The event raised almost $90 for band uniforms, a project of the PTA and a separate organization, Band Parent Organization, seeking funds to buy at least 65 new uniforms.

School Changeover Begins February 1

Unitary System Creates New School

Public schools of Appomattox County are closed for the remainder of this week as principals and teachers plan for the changeover from a duo-school system to a unitary plan, made manatory by a ruling of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Effective Feb. 1, the Appomattox School Baord will operate four schools in the county: Appomattox County High School, formerly Appomattox High School for all pupils in grades 9-12; Appomattox Intermediate School (formerly Carver-Price Elementary and High School) for grades 5-7 in Zone 2 and all 8th graders of 1 and 2 of the county. Appomattox Primary School (formerly Appomattox Elementary School) will house grades 1-4 living in zone 2 and Pamplin Elementary School will house grades 1-7 living in zone 1 of the county.

Zone 1 is an area surrounding the town of Pamplin with zone 2 the balance of the county.

School superintendent Earl J. Smith, speaking Monday evening to the Appomattox High School PTA about the changes said,

"Our major concern is that this be accomplished with as little loss of continuity as possible and as little lost time as possible."

He said that it is a matter of "moving desks" and of "intensive planning," also.

Each teacher will receive instructional recommendations on the textbooks each child is using and how far he has progressed in reading books, arithmetic, etc.

High School

Appomattox High School will become Appomattox County High School incorporating approximately 180 9-12 grade students from what was formerly all Negro Carver-Price High School on Confederate Blvd. Supt. Smith said that the ratio is approximately 1/3 Negro students to 2/3 white, a ratio that will be established in the classrooms, as of Monday.

Parents asked questions about the probation status currently imposed on Appomattox High School by the Virginia High School League dating to incidents at a Nelson County-Rebel football game in October.

AHS principal Frank Chuchek said that no definite ruling had been made. He said that only five games remain in the Rebel schedule, and that possibly all Carver-Price games would be forfeited and the Rebel schedule maintained through the end of the season.

Rebel and Panther teams will be combined with the varsity coach, Joseph Lewis, former varsity coach at Carver-Price. Junior Varsity coach at Appomattox County High School will be Robert Burness and eighth grade coach at Appomattox Intermediate School will be Wilfred Rogers.

The girls' basketball coach will remain the same, Mrs. Louise Martin, inasmuch as there is no girls' team at Carver-Price this year.

Principal Chuchek and Supt. Smith both said that matters of uniform colors, motto, team names, etc. will all have to be decided after reorganization is complete.

Mr. Chuchek said that possibly there will be a sharing of Athletes' posts in the high school clubs.

School Bus Routes

Beginning February 2, 1970, school busses in Appomattox County will travel the following routes. Nearly every bus will go to the Appomattox Primary School, Appomattox Intermediate School, and Appomattox County High School.

Each pupil who will change from the bus he was riding should have received a number from the bus driver on Tues., Jan. 27, 1970. This number should be brought by the child to the school on Mon., Feb. 2. It will take a few days for the busses to adjust to a time schedule so the exact time the bus will arrive at your house the first day cannot be given. In cases where a bus travels the same route as in the past or there is very little change in the route the "NO CHANGE" is listed in the route descriptions below. Minor adjustments will have to be made in the futures as needed.
